A FRAGMENT.

In'er may mark the spot where thou dost lie;
Upon a mountain's brow they've raised thy tomb,
In a far land beneath a southern sky,
And shrubs, they say, around, and flowers bloom
In rich profusion. And the red round sun,
When o'er the heavens his proud career is run,
Doth pour his tend'ring splendors o'er the sod,
And hallow it with loveliness most sweet:
But ah! by foreign foot that turf is trod;
And foreign eyes those touching hues must meet.

At the deep midnight hour I think of thee,
When roll the stars upon their silent course,
When the deep shadows of a world to be
Come o'er the soul with their subduing force.
And as I mark the countless orbs of light
Softening away the darkness of the night,
I marvel which may be thy radiant home;
Where in celestial beauty clad on high,
Thy glad voice mingles with the hosts who roam
Those fields of light, in solemn jubilee.

Oh! in that hour of dread, and doubt, and gloom,
And solitude, and silence, when the soul
Would fain o'erleap the boundaries of the tomb,
And pierce the clouds that round its empire roll;
And memory, the magician, from his caves
Calls the pale ghosts of vanished hours, like waves
From the dim ocean of departed years;
Thronging and thick athwart the aching sight
They come, and mock us with our hopes, our fears,
Our smiles, our sorrows, and our earliest tears.

Oh! in that hour of watching hath the long
Long yearnings of my over-burdened heart
Burst forth in words of passion wild and strong—
Oh! come to me, my friend, where'er thou art!
Come as in other times of happiness,
In all thy sweetness, all thy gentleness;
When thou couldst smile away my griefs, and scare
Afar the miseries of despair and gloom,
And gently smooth the wrinkled brow of care—
Come and reveal the mysteries of the tomb!

STENOGRAPHIC GLIMPSES OF CONGRESS.—No. 143.

Washington, May 16, 1834.—Friday was devoted in the Senate to private business, in good earnest. A bill had been reported by the Committee, for allowing the claims of the arrs [heirs] (as Mr. Moore called them) of Lieut. Wild, of Delaware, a Revolutionary officer, and invalid pensioner, who had never made any claim for his services, and had died of his wounds eight years after the war. Half of the Senate nearly spoke on the subject, which was debated till near 5 o'clock. Mr. Webster spoke two or three times; but when it came to a vote, he always withdrew into the recess. It is quite incomprehensible, that a man should undertake to influence the opinions of others without having any of his own; or having an opinion, should not dare to vote with it, or against it. Mr. Clayton was the principal advocate for the bill; Mr. Clay supported it as did also Naudan and others. The Senators from S. C. were against it, as being a precedent, except for those cases where a man died with a lockjaw; the invalid in question, it being said died of this disease resulting from wounds received eight or ten years before. This is certainly a most extraordinary case for a person to die of the lockjaw, resulting from a chronic disease of eight or ten years continuance. I did not hear the evidence in the case, nor should I have believed it, had I heard it, if it went to establish the fact of a lockjaw from a chronic disease. It is altogether probable that the lockjaw was added by way of amendment to increase the equity of the claim, and to insure the interest, which was contended for.

Mr. Preston based an argument against any new class of pensions, on the ground of fraud, contending that there were more aged pensioners than could have possibly fought; and inferred that the North had got rather more than their share of pension money, inasmuch as they had a very great disproportion of aged pensioners in proportion to their population, compared to pensioners and population of the South—more especially as longevity increased, beginning with Maine, till it arrived at its maximum in South Carolina; and that while this State had only 300 and odd of pensioners, New York (I think he said) had 1900—which he said was eighteen times as many. This was a mistake—it is only about six times as many. I think his argument was founded entirely in an error; and that no correct inference can be drawn by taking longevity or population as a basis to prove how many are entitled to pensions. But enough of this. The bill, after some vain attempts of amendment, passed to be engrossed.

The subject of pensioning the Baltimore Railroad was then taken up and discussed an hour, and put by—the Senate adjourning to Monday.

It has been on the whole a dull week among the Vhigs and their collective Visdom—werry indeed. I think they will be ready to adjourn as soon as the House; and should not be surprised if Mr. Webster should consent (reluctantly, of course!) to an adjournment without having relieved the country, or the country of the Vhigs, i. e. the Bank, from distress—for the executive has most unquestionably distressed Nick, and all the idolaters of calm o' Biddle, most patriotically.

The House debated the appropriation Bill; and put Mr. Adams in the chair, so that all the members might have an opportunity to talk in squads to each other, instead of allowing only one the floor. I popped in a few times; and found it quite amusing to see and hear almost every member on the floor talking, just like a country town meeting before the moderator is chosen. I hope I shall be excused for declining to report what any one said; for what opinion would the hundred and forty-one have of my impartiality? Reis Effendi.

STENOGRAPHIC GLIMPSES OF CONGRESS—No. 144.

Washington, May 17, 1834.—Fine weather is restored; the Senate is (or are?) let loose; but the House are yeaving and neighing at the appropriation bill. This morning they commenced with moving a reconsideration of the vote "postponing the fixing the time of adjournment;" and when it was pretty clearly indicated that the motion could be carried, the mover withdrew it. I suppose it was only an "experiment." The vote on this subject was not a party vote entirely, but the parties rather aim to go together on this, as on most occasions.

The House have been occupied in the discussion of various appropriations of the secondary order; Mr Adams in the chair. He makes quite a good chairman; never with more haste than good speed.

Speaker Stevenson has quite exhausted his strength in his arduous duties; and latterly, has been obliged to call Mr Hubbard and others to the chair. I think he would be very glad to give up the chair for a mission to England; and think that the opposition would not cavil much about his nomination. But I do not speak by any authority; it is mere conjecture; my conjecture arises principally from their threats to oppose all parties—and people that threaten, I observe, never, or rarely, execute their threats.

The House passed a resolution to adjourn from Thursday next to the following Monday; to give an opportunity, it is understood, to take up carpets and have a cleaning; and moreover, to allow some of the political jockies to attend the Baltimore races.

Very possibly my next glimpses of Congress may be from the monumental city—the city of beauty and blushes—of fair forms and bright eyes. I have not yet spoken of all the beauties from this city, who have visited the Capitol this season; but I have them all noted on my tablets—all their charms recorded in my private journal. They will come up by and by, fresh as a spring flower, when they perhaps may imagine themselves quite forgotten. I shall not, of course, even hint their names at present; I lest, perchance, they might sue me for a breach of promise, in case I failed, in a reasonable time, to give their charms "a local habitation and a name."

The Baltimore races, I am told, are the finest in the country; and attended by all the beauty and fashion of the city, suburbs, and neighboring States. I think it would be a pleasant jaunt, and an agreeable sojourn; so I shall put it on the orders of the day for Monday, possibly. I am quite sure this course will be much gayer than the Capitol next week; and I already begin to feel the lack of interest and excitement here. I have used up pretty much every thing; and every thing in its turn has used up me; there is nothing but fine weather remaining, and nothing to make it pass away very agreeably.

By the way, a word about our French relations. Is Louis Philippe such a baboon as to suppose "we are in the midst of a revolution," and therefore it is not worth his while to fulfil a solemn treaty? And who will the country return thanks to for making this lively impression of our "distress" upon the politeness and Punic faith of his "most (not quite) Christian Majesty?" The Whigs, unquestionably, to them alone belongs this honor. And let them take the consequences.

It may not be uninteresting at the same time to inquire whether Spain and Naples will not be likely to follow suit with Philippe, and nullify their treaties? It is quite a new thing for European Governments to refuse appropriations to carry a treaty into effect, after it has been solemnly ratified. It would be interesting to know whether the French government may not have taken their cue from Mr Clay's threat, and the threats of the Senatorial Whigs generally, "not to pass Appropriation Bills?"

The French ought to understand, that the majority of our Senate have but little or nothing to do with the Government; they devote their time to passing malign resolutions against the Executive, and electioneering for the next President. They represent nobody but themselves; and attend to no public duties but opposing the administration, and trying to bring about a revolution.

The French Government, I think, will understand, that if we are in the "midst of a revolution," it will furnish no apology for their Punic faith.

REIS EFFENDI.

LATER FROM EUROPE.

The Poland, Capt. Anthony, arrived at New York on Sunday from Havre, whence she sailed on the 16th ult. The Poland brought Paris papers of the 15th, which contain London advices to the 13th.

Paris, April 13.—Some disturbances took place last evening, but the rioters were defeated at every point by the troops and the National Guards. The insurgents had placed themselves at the windows in the several streets in which they had taken their stand, whence they could fire in comparative safety upon the troops. They kept up in this manner an occasional firing during the night, which was not returned by the troops; but when daylight enabled the latter to act, in one hour they were masters of every hostile position. At six in the morning the Dukes of Orleans and Nemours mounted their horses, and rode to the scene of disturbance. They were received in their progress with the warmest acclamations from the troops, the National Guards, and the people. They returned to the Tuileries at eight o'clock. As they were passing the Rue du Ponceau two shots were fired at them, happily without effect.

One o'clock.—His Majesty is now reviewing the troops in the Place du Carrousel, preparatory to riding through the quarters of Paris which have become the seat of disorder, as he did in June, 1832. He was received by the troops and National Guards, and the assembled crowd, with enthusiastic cheers.

There were terrible disturbances at Lyons, on the 9th April. According to letters worthy of confidence, the action commenced at several points at the same time, and in parts of the town beyond the two rivers which intersect it. The efforts of the insurgents, however, were principally directed to the environs of the Palais de Justice, that is, in the quarter beyond the Saone. Driven back upon the bridges, and afterwards forced from them, they were compelled to concentrate themselves in a species of delta, the sides of which were formed by the Rues Merciere, Grenette, de l'Hopital, and containing a great many very narrow and populous streets. Here they were enclosed ever since Wednesday, and it was evidently the plan of the General to keep them as if they were blockaded, and drive them to surrender without further effusion of blood. It is said that about 200 of the troops were on that day put hors du combat—120 of these troops were carried to the hospital, and the rest were killed on the spot. The losses on the side of the rebels were much more considerable. It is said that no less than 600 of them were killed and wounded.

Termination of the Contest at Lyons.—Paris, April 14.—The following dispatch, dated Lyons, Saturday, 12th April, 11 o'clock in the evening, by telegraph, was received at Paris yesterday—"Lyons is delivered. The faubourgs which were occupied by the insurgents have fallen into our power. The communications are fully re-established. The mails have resumed their course. The anarchists are in the greatest disorder."

The office of the Tribune, in Paris, was sealed, April 13, and its editor sent to prison, for inflammatory publications.

Madrid was tranquil on the 6th of April.

The Brussels papers of the 12th contain little of importance. Arrests continue to be made of persons implicated in the pillage of the 5th and 6th instant. Perfect tranquillity prevails in the town, but still soldiers, granted as guards to such of the subscribers for the horses as solicited them, remain in their houses for their protection.

Upwards of 2000 passengers had left the London docks during the three weeks preceding the 12th of April, for the U. States, Canada, &c. The George Clinton, for N. York, sailed on the 8th, with upwards of 300 emigrants.

The death of Lord Blayney was announced in Dublin.

Greece.—Letters from Greece report that country as remarkably prosperous, particularly in a commercial point of view. Speculators already speak of the propriety of prohibiting the exportation of certain articles, to promote the establishment of the manufactory of cloths.

Havre Market, April 9.—Cotton—1551 bales Mobile at 130c, 30 bales Alabama at 130c, 270 bales Alabama at 124c, 95 bales Pernambuco at 162c, 50c. 130 bales do at 162c.

Coffee—38 tierces, 64 quarts Guadalupe at 142c.

Liverpool, April 12th.—Cotton—Imports for the week 7633 bales. Notwithstanding Cotton continues to be offered though the market has been heavy through the week, American

Islands had with difficulty maintained their price; but Sea Islands are higher and much in demand. Sales for the week 18,550 bales, of which 14,530 were American. Prices—Upland

From the Temperance Journal.

The St. Louis Republican of the 1st inst. says in relation to the high-handed measures adopted by the President—"It will not surprise us if the close of the present month finds our country in a state of Revolution. The members of the Senate have strong nerves and stout hearts, and will not yield except at the point of the bayonet. They would be traitors to the Constitution should they do so. On the other hand, Gen. Jackson cannot retrace his steps. He cannot even stand still, but must go forward. And one other act—which can be that of violence alone—sounds the knell of the Constitution and of the peace of the Union. It becomes each of us, then, to choose between them, and prepare ourselves for the part we intend to play in the great Drama."

The above is copied from the Mercantile Journal, and being copied into that print without comment, we suppose it speaks the sentiments of the publisher and his patrons. Here we are distinctly told that Revolution is expected. We have long known that revolution peacefully, if they could, forcibly if they must—was the object of the opposition. It is not a new design, for it has been entertained by the leading members of the monarchy party from the foundation of our Constitution, down to the present time. They were foiled in the Convention, and were unable to carry through Hamilton's plan for a monarchy—they were hurled from power the moment they shew their real designs, under the elder Adams—they were defeated and overthrown in their dishonest intrigues for the same object, to make Mr Barr President. They were disappointed, and their plan for revolution, which Mr J. Q. Adams says they had formed in 1804-5, in connection with the Governor of Nova Scotia, was deranged by, to quote, the untimely death of Hamilton—they were disgraced and defeated in their treasonable league with Sir James Craig, Governor of Canada, by the untoward disclosures of John Henry; and they were again broken to pieces, and all the aid they had given to the enemy during the last war, was rendered of no avail, by the victory of New Orleans and the peace. Their hopes however revived, when by bargain and corruption they had seized upon the government, and placed Mr Adams, who had publicly accused the leaders of the party with having plotted treason, in the Presidential Chair. Josiah Quincy, who had offered a resolution to impeach Mr Jefferson, who had presented the resolve, that it was unbecoming a moral and religious people to rejoice in our victories—who had threatened to control Mr Madison's administration, "peaceably if he could, forcibly if he must," in the exuberance of his joy at the election of Mr Adams, hastened to proclaim, that "those, (that is the monarchists—the present whigs) who fell with the first Adams, rise with the second." They rose with the second, and fell as they rose, with their leader. The people came to the rescue—they drove the usurpers from power. But this party nothing daunted, have made a league with the Bank, fortified by British influence and British capital, though overwhelmed at the ballot-box, talk of fight—of violent revolution.—All the party, from grave members of Congress, well paid by the Bank down to their Grub Street two pennies, fed upon crumbs and peddled by infants, talk of revolution! That they want revolution, that they intend revolution, and that they are preparing to carry it by force if they fail to succeed by fraud, we have no doubt.

It is not any illegal act that Gen. Jackson has done that has offended them, for they know that he has confined himself within the pale of the Constitution, and has done more than any of his predecessors, except Mr Jefferson, to confine the action of the Government within constitutional limits; and he is sustained by the people, while the Senate bids open defiance to the wishes and instructions of those they represent. It is not against Gen. Jackson, nor the acts of Gen. Jackson, that their real objections lie. It is against the form of our government—against the freedom of the press—the freedom of religion—the freedom of industry—the right of choosing and following any honest profession—of universal suffrage—of the equality of rights, powers and privileges generally, which the people enjoy, that the opposition make war. Gen. Jackson's administration is the occasion, not the cause of the turmoil among them. The real contest is now, as it always has been, between those who wish privileged orders, exclusive rights, monopolies and monarchy, and those who favor free governments. If the exclusives can carry the people, and gain a bloodless revolution, they would prefer it. If not, they intend war. Mr Binney tells the Baltimoreans that force will be resorted to, if necessary, to carry the Bank; and here in the foregoing extract we are told, that the USURPERS in the Senate "will not yield except at the point of the bayonet." We deprecate violence; the democrats from principle and policy deprecate any resort to force—but they will not be intimidated by threats; nor will they shrink from any duty and sacrifice, however painful, that may be necessary to maintain our institutions and the integrity of the Union from the assaults of lawless violence. While we caution our friends, and all true friends to the country, against violence, we advise them not to disregard the threatening, movements and disposition of the enemy—and that they prepare themselves to act manfully and efficiently in whatever crisis may come. Much as violence is to be deprecated, a tame surrender of our rights is more so. The times are ominous. The "Te Deum" saints and the Hartford Convention patriots, like birds of ill omen, are emerging from the oblivion of a generation, and are now, as they were during the late war, hovering about, scattering their venom and disseminating their treason over the land. In these times wise men will not sleep on their posts.

The Hartford Convention Whigs seem to relish the language bestowed upon Mr Jefferson by the Boston Courier, amazingly. They rejoice that one of their number has been found bold enough, publicly to express the feelings which they have all privately held. We have no doubt but a majority of them fully agree with the Courier, that they are "disgusted with democracy"—and that, with that paper, they are ready to "say after full reflection that the sooner New England cuts herself off from the corrupt and corrupting body politic, the better." These would-be nobles, who make it an objection to Gen. Jackson that he has no relative on whom the mantle of his glory may fall, and that he is but the son of a poor Irish woman, can never rest satisfied under a government like ours, that bestows its protection, as Heaven does its blessings, alike upon the poor and the rich, the humble and the proud.

The Journal of Commerce of Monday, says—"Letters from Havre state that the French Government had despatched a sloop of war from Brest, for the United States, with despatches for our Government, of such a character as it was presumed would be satisfactory."

To Faneuil Hall, voters, this day, and reject the odious amendment of the City Charter relative to the election of the School Committee; gotten up merely to deprive the Wards of their rights, and to aid book speculators.

Daddy Lindsey thinks it would be impolitic to "revive old party feelings." How wonderfully sagacious, when a man with half an eye can see that such a revival would end the political existence of the Whigs as quick as if they were all hanged on a Haman's gallows.

The Philadelphia Whigs are to give Senator Southard a public dinner, as a reward for disobeying the instructions of his constituents. A serpent should be served up, as an emblem.

Mr Livingston, our minister in France, was received by the King on the 3d ult. On the 2d, Mr L. was at the grand Diplomatic Dinner, given by Count Borgo, to Lord Durham.

The Supreme Court closed a long session at Worcester, on Saturday. The last and most interesting case of the session, was that of Miss Frances Rice vs. a Mr William, of Leicester, for a breach of promise of marriage—in which the jury brought in a verdict of nineteen hundred dollars and costs, for the plaintiff.

"The mysterious robbery."—The Prince of Orange if we may credit the private correspondence of the London Times—is still suspected of having made away with his wife's jewels, notwithstanding the man named Polari has confessed that he was the thief! It is said that Polari, who might have escaped by taking advantage of a technical blunder in the proceedings against him, appeared eager to be convicted; and now it is supposed he will be pardoned.

The above is from the New York Mirror—some accounts say that Polari has been condemned and executed—he must be a most loyal subject to be willing to be hanged for his Prince.

Tremont Theatre.—Mr Andrews, a favorite low comedian takes a benefit this evening, when he will be happy to entertain his friends with the sterling comedy of Sweethearts and Wives, and (first time) the new farce of P. P. or, The Man and the Tiger, performed at the Park Theatre, New York, with great success. Mr A. will undoubtedly have, as he deserves, a good house.

The Hunchback was well played on Monday evening. Mrs Drake's Julia was as good, to say the least, as any we ever witnessed. Her first interview with Clifford, was admirable—the latter character being well sustained by Mr Barry. She terminated her engagement last evening, as Eucadne.

Warren Theatre.—Miss LANE, whose performances in light comedy have given very general satisfaction, takes a benefit this evening. Though an adept in the lighter walks of the drama, she is the youngest, as well as one of the most spirited actresses on the Boston boards, and her unremitting exertions to contribute to the entertainment of the play-going public, entitle her to their liberal support on this occasion.

Mr Magown, of Medford, was not killed by the accident which befel him on Friday last, as stated in yesterday's Post. He is expected to recover.

The rumor that the Bank of Augusta (Georgia) had suspended specie payments, turns out to be "a weak invention of the enemy."

The county jail in Boonville, Miss. was destroyed by fire on the 22d ult. It was set on fire by a criminal who was confined on a charge of horse-stealing.

It was expected a bill would be introduced into the Connecticut Legislature, for taxing the property of Yale College, and its officers.

Latest from Captain Back.—The British Consul received a letter this morning from Capt. Back, dated Fort Reliance, East End of Great Slave Lake, Dec. 7, 1833. The following extracts Mr Buchanan has furnished, as so many feel an interest in whatever relates to that intrepid and humane traveller:

And now, my dear Sir, I must inform you, that the expedition has advanced steadily in its humane and interesting object, without having experienced any of those untoward circumstances that sometimes paralyze and cast a gloom over our best and most strenuous exertions.

"Every thing is in a fair train, and next year, under the guidance of Divine Providence, I trust we may be still in time to rescue suffering mortality from destruction."—N. Y. Com.

POLICE COURT.

Infanticide.—Sarah Keyes, an unmarried female, was arrested, on Monday night, by Constable Pierce, upon a charge of having drowned an illegitimate child, in Mansfield, Bristol county, Mass. On the 29th of April last, a new born male infant, inclosed in an old shirt and apron, formed into a bag, was found in what is called the Saw Mill Pond, in Mansfield. The child had the appearance of having lain in the water about three days, or from Saturday to Tuesday, when it was found. Previous to that time, it was suspected by some persons that Sarah Keyes was pregnant; and it was also reported that on the Friday and Saturday preceding the finding of the dead body of the infant, she confined herself to her room. In consequence of these suspicions she was examined before a Magistrate, in Norton, and discharged. She then came to Boston, and has resided ever since at the Washington Hotel. In the mean time a portion of the people of Mansfield were dissatisfied with the result of the examination held in Norton, and a town meeting was called to take the subject into consideration, and a committee was appointed to take measures to procure the arrest of Sarah again. This committee arrived in Boston on Monday evening, after the adjournment of the Police Court, and one of them having appeared before Wm. Knapp, Esq., Justice of the Peace, and sworn "to his probable belief," &c. that said Sarah did cast and throw said male child into the pond, a warrant was granted for her arrest. Her counsel, John C. Park, Esq., justly dreading the excitement produced by the instrumentality of political leaders at town-meetings, made an effort to have the witnesses, at Mansfield, summoned to appear in Boston, to attend the primary examination, which could be conducted here without being prejudiced by any extraneous influence. The Court, however, probably not willing to assume the responsibility of presuming the existence of any obstacles to an impartial hearing in Mansfield, informed the complainant that the prisoner should be delivered up to the custody of any deputy Sheriff legally authorized to convey her to that place.

Mary Kanavan was charged with being a common pilferer, and a ditto drunkard. It appeared that Mrs Kanavan made one vice support another, as she bartered the proceeds of her pilfering propensity, for gin and other sweetmeats, at a rum-and-junk-store. When arrested, she was in the act of taking a swig of the white fire; and as tippy tipped her on the shoulder, she fell as if lightning had struck her, and did not open her eyes again till she was launched out of the hand-cart at the jail door.—6 months.

Two-fifths of the stock will be reserved for the Legislature of the State.

Washington, May 17, 1834.—The Senate was not in session to-day. In the House, Mr Watmough bill to equalize the pay of the officers of the Army and Navy, made a report unfavorable to the principle of equalization, accompanied by a bill on the subject, which he will call up on Tuesday week.

Mr Thompson's motion to reconsider the vote of adjournment, resolution, was taken up, and after moved to lay the subject, as it stood, on the table, which motion was defeated by an ominous vote. Mr Thompson then withdrew the Resolution, saying that he saw plainly that it was to occupy too much time.

The Harbor Bill occupied the rest of the day.—N. Y. Jour. Com.

Federal Court.—The U. S. Circuit Court for the district of North Carolina, held its Spring Term in this city on Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday last. Present, Chief Justice Marshall and Judge Potter. The only case before the Court which elicited any interest, was that of James Bruce, charged with robbing the mail at the Post Office in Milton last Winter. Troy, May 13.—The Bank party carry out their game of noisy pretension, by claiming a triumph in our character election. The result, so far from affording them any real cause of exultation, is a gain for the administration since the last election.
